City's Greatest Celebration For New Bridge Is Set For Oct. 18

DEDICATION OF NEW BRIDGE TO BE BIG EVENT

COMMITTEE SETS DATE AHEAD ONE WEEK—IMPORTANT HIGHWAY OFFICIALS TO BE ENTERTAINED—FINE PROGRAM ARRANGED.

Plans are practically completed for the big bridge celebration which is to be held in this city next month for the dedication of the new bridge and to commemorate the completion of that fine structure and the completion of 44 miles of concrete roadway on State Trunk Highway 13 in Wood County. The general committee headed by C. A. Normington, chairman, and composed of over a dozen local men met Thursday to complete arrangements for the celebration which promises to be the biggest event in the history of the city and county. Oct. 18 is the date set officially for the celebration.

Ask Hirst Here

According to Mr. Normington's announcement, A. R. Hirst, head of the state highway commission, state, county and city highway officials, state and county and city boards and councils and officials are to be invited to take a leading part in the celebration. Mr. Hirst and the state, county and city officials, supervisors and councilmen are to be entertained at a banquet which Mr. Hirst is invited to address on the evening of Oct. 17.

Full Day's Program

The program for the day includes the dedication exercises at 9:30 o'clock in the morning with an address by Mr. Hirst and Mayor Roenius and the christening of the bridge by the most popular young woman in Wood County to be selected as Bridge Queen by popular vote which is to start in a few days. Following the dedication Battery E. is to fire a salute.

At 10 o'clock a huge industrial parade with unique floats will form at the St. Paul station and continue over the bridge to Oak and Second streets then east on Oak to Sixth to the high school and then to the old fair grounds to be displayed. The parade will be headed by city, county and state officials. Three bands will join in the parade, the Wisconsin Rapids, Service Battery and Pittsville bands being engaged for the occasion. At the fair grounds the floats will remain on display and lunch will be served there.

Plan Wedding

One of the unique features of the celebration will be a wedding at high noon. It is said that several contracting parties are anxious for the chance to be wedded at the celebration as Wisconsin Rapids merchants will offer attractive wedding presents to the newly weds. Other prospective principals for the ceremony should communicate with Chairman R. F. Matthews of the Entertainment Committee.

At 1:30 o'clock a flying circus from St. Paul with aerial acrobatics and a parachute jump is planned and will continue through the afternoon. At 3:30 o'clock the Wisconsin Rapids-Marshfield High School football game will be played which will be one of the main attractions. The grounds will also be supplied with carnival concessions to make the celebration complete.

Fireworks

In the evening a display of fireworks will be set up south of the bridge with the band playing a concert from barges anchored in the river near the bridge. Following the fireworks display, there will be a free dance in the Amusement Hall. The committee says everyting will be free to the public except the food and carnival concessions which will insure everyone of a gala day at no cost and will be a celebration worthy of any city.

County Clerk In Protest To Rule About Licenses

County Clerk Sani Church has written a letter of protest to the Conservation Commission at Madison against the new ruling of the commission in regard to the issuing of hunting licenses, which Mr. Church declares works a hardship upon the working men of the county. He has asked W. E. Barber, chairman of the commission, to modify the ruling to permit the applicant for a hunting license to secure one without making a personal application for the license.

Suggest Course

Mr. Church has suggested to the Commission that the regulation now in effect which prohibits the person seeking a license from securing one because he does not make a regular affidavit for the license in case he can not appear in person, should be modified to permit county clerks to use their own judgment in issuing licenses by mail and otherwise in the case of applicants who have year after year secured licenses and who have never been guilty of violation of the game laws.

Many Protests

The plan followed heretofore has permitted the issuing of a license to persons who have held licenses the previous years without making it necessary for them to appear in person if they are in good standing. This practice is now revoked and it is the regulation which requires either appearance in person or the filing of a proper affidavit that is working a hardship upon laboring people, who have to leave their work to go to the court house during the hours the office is open, Mr. Church stated. He based his complaint to the commission on that contention, saying that protests have been made from all over the county on the Commission's new ruling.

Committee Finds Asylum Farm In Excellent Shape

The County Asylum farm near Marshfield is in the most prosperous condition in its history, according to the report of Nate Anderson of this city, who with the other members of the county board committee on the insane and insane accounts visited the farm Thursday. Mr. Anderson praised the work of Superintendent L. E. Gilson, who is in direct charge and stated that the buildings and other equipment were in excellent condition and the crops unusually large this year.

The committee, which in addition to Mr. Anderson includes Louis Trossen of Marshfield, chairman, and William Schimmelpfennig of Marshfield, J. C. Kieffer of Auburndale, and George H. Knapton of the town of Richfield, accompanied by their wives, made a complete tour of the farm, were entertained at dinner by Superintendent and Mrs. Gilson.

There are 195 patients at the asylum at present, 29 having recently been trasferred to the Clark county asylum. The farm is one of the best equipped and stocked in the country, and is apparently proving an excellent investment. 125 head of pure bred dairy stock are housed in two large modern barns, and a third structure to provide for expansion is nearing completion. The crops were unusually good this year, and the bins and lofts are all well filled with grain, potatoes and hay.

Over 4,000 quarts of raspberries and strawberries were harvested at the farm this year, and excellent yields of crab apples and other fruits were also obtained.

FUEL COMMITTEE TAKES ACTION TO BAN PROFITEERS

WILL OBTAIN ACTUAL DATA ON COAL TO WISCONSIN DEALERS; PRICES MUST BE REASONABLE

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis. Sept. 15—Definite steps to head off profiteering by Wisconsin coal dealers were taken by the state fuel committee today with the submission of a questionnaire to 58 docking companies in the state, asking for price information.

Docking concerns who handle practically all coal coming to Wisconsin are to furnish the state committee with an estimate of the average mine price of coal received by them, the average freight rate to Lake Michigan ports, vessel freight an handling costs on the docks.

With this information the state coal committee will be able to determine whether local dealers are making exhorbitant profits on sales to customers, P. H. Pressentin, secretary of the committee sai.

Prosecution under the state marketing law will be commenced where ever there is evidence of profiteering, he declared.

Any person in the state who encounters difficulty in obtaining coal should communicate with the state fuel committee at Madison, Mr. Pressentin advised today, after learning that in some sections individuals had complained of inability to get fuel. The committee, he states, is in a position to render aid.

Thousands Await Opening Of Duck Hunting Season

Milwaukee, Wis. Sept. 15—The duck season officially opens tomorrow and according to reports hundreds of hunters are already camped along many of the lakes and bays in Wisconsin waiting for opening.

Game wardens throughout the state are busy watching early arrivals to see that the game laws are not violated and that the hunters do not bag more then the alloted number of birds.

It was estimated by the county clerk in Green Bay that already there are 1600 hunters waiting in Green Bay and along the marshes for an early start after the game. It was said that hunters' cottages along the Bay are all rented and that a large number of gasoline launches are in readiness for the sportsmen who prefer to play their luck in the open.

It is reported that many out of state have taken out licenses in Wisconsin cities and expect to spend the hunting season in the marshes of this state.

SAILSTAD BONES UNDER COURT BAN; SHOW SIMILARITY

(By Associated Press)

Superior, Wis., Sept. 14—The bones recovered from the ruins of the burned cabin at Lake Nebagamon, which which counsel for Mrs. Leona Sailstad Richardson contends are those of Edward J. Sailstad, missing Eau Claire Wis. manufacturer, were barred from exposure in the court room here today by Federal Judge C. Z. Luse.

The court sustained objection by the counsel for the New York Life Insurance Company, defendants in a suit to collect $10,000 insurance.

Defense Objects

The defense objected when Dr. W. E. Sullivan, professor of anatomy of the University of Wisconsin, proceeded to unpack from a suit case, bones which he expected to use in explaining what bones he found in the box labeled, "the remains of Edward J. Sailstad."

Judge Luse said he "doubted the propriety of bringing bones into court at any event."

The court yesterday barred from the court room two human skeletons intended for use in connection with testimony by Dr. C. H. Bunting, University of Wisconsin pathologist.

Skeleton Similar

Further testimony regarding the similarity of a skeleton constructed from the bones found in the ruins of the burned cabin at Lake Nebagamon to a skeleton of a man corresponding in size to Edwards J. Sailstad, was promised by the counsel for the plaintiff when the fourth day of the trial opened today.

Dr. C. H. Bunting, University of Wisconsin patheologist, testified yesterday that the bones shipped to him as the "remains of Edward J. Sailstad" were those of a male human being.

PLAN TO ENFORCE FILLED-MILK LAW

Sept. 15—Immediate and strict enforcement of the Wisconsin statute prohibiting manufacture of sale of filled-milk was under-ture of sale of filled-milk, was under-and food commissioner, who issued instructions to his inspectors requesting them to give particular attention to provisions of the law.

Manufacturing concerns are said to have stopped making the product of skimmed milk and cocoanut oil in most instances. The prohibition of sale of the filled-milk is expected to require greater attention from the dairy and food commissioner.

The letter sent by Mr. Emery to his inspectors follows:

"You are instructed to give in connection with your regular inspection work immediate and particular attention to the enforcement of the terms unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to manufacture, sell or exchange any condensed skim milk to which has been added any fat or oil other than milk fat either under the name of said articles or products or derivatives thereof or under any fictitious or trade name whatsoever.

TURKS CHARGED WITH MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS

GREEK REPORTS SAY VICTORS IN SMYRNA WARFARE KILLED THOUSANDS AND THEN SET FIRE TO CITY

(By Associated Press)

Massacres of far reaching proportions are reported to have occurred at Smyrna preceding the terrible conflagration which has just swept the city.

The first reports came from Greek sources and estimated the victims as high as 1,000 to 2,000. Later reports from British eye witnesses and from Americans arriving at Greek ports tended to confirm the reports and gave harrowing accounts of the extent of the devastation wrought.

An English agency dispatch declared that British officials had warned the Turks at Smyrna that if massacres continued there, the Turkish quarters would be bombarded.

Bodies Lie in Streets

A correspondent of the Reuters arriving at Malta said hundreds of bodies of victims were lying in the streets of Smyrna when he left and that pillaging and massacres were continuing.

The Greeks were not blameless, they declared, as they had aroused the Turks by setting fire to villages during the retreat of the Greek army.

Invasion of the Britsh consulate at Smyrna by Turks and the murder of officials there also were reported.

A Greek semi-official dispatch from Athens quoted the American investigation as estimating the number of victims up to the time of the fire in Smyrna at one thousand. Property losses from fires were estimated in Greek quarters at $75,000,000.

(By Associated Press)

London, Sept. 15—From one thousand to two thousand Christians were massacred in Smyrna by the Turks before the fire which swept the Armenian and other quarters of the Greek army, it is charged in semi-official and other Greek messages from Athens received here today.

Among the Turkish outrages was the carrying off of many girl pupils of the American Girls College, it is alleged.

The Greek belief is that the fire was set by the Turks to conceal traces of their alleged misdeeds.

American Losses Heavy

A large share of the property loss from fire, estimated at a billion francs, about $75,000,000 at the present rate of exchange, fell upon American firms. A message from Greek semi-official sources at Athens, dated Thursday, reads:

"Absolutely trustworthy persons belonging to the foreign colony at Smyrna and notable Americans arriving here on the destroyer Simpson, which also brought United States Counsul John Horton, relate terrifying details regarding the massacre at Smyrna before the fire had reduced Armenian, Greek and European sections of the town to ashes."

City Fired By Turks

According to general conviction the fire was started by the Turks to efface traces of their massacres and other crimes. Miss Mills, matron of the American college for girls, declares she saw officers of the Turkish regular army enter a house carrying several cans of petroleum. Soon after he came out of the house, it burst into flames.

"Besides the pupils, about 1300 refugees had been taken into the college, which was near the place where the fire started. The fate of many of the girl pupils is unknown, and it is alleged many have been carried off by Turks."

Miss Minnie Getts returned to Milwaukee today to resume her duties at the Emergency Hospital there following a visit in this city with her parents, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Getts.

WEATHER

Generally fair tonight, Saturday slightly cooler, tonight probably light frost north and central portion.

THOSE BOTHERSOME WOMEN

This thing of woman's rights is being carried entirely too far.

In the old days, when a man could collect his two dollars, go to the ballot box and show up at home late on election night with a hoarse voice, bulging eyes and a gate unsteady from the excitement of victory or defeat or something of the sort, women knew their places.

They knew then that while they might be shown every consideration, while they might throw away hubby's old brown derby when it was time for him to buy a new one, while they might even buy him cigars with impunity, there was after all just one sovereign in the house, and the brawny old thing that brought home the beefsteak was it.

But that's all changed now. There was a subtle something about the vote that made for respect. Now women are in on all the mysteries of politics, and they have seen what a collossal bluff their husbands had been pulling for all these years.

It's worse this year than at any previous time since the passage of the seventeenth amendment. It has got to the point where a man can't get up any more and orate a little about this broad country of ours, stretching as it does from the rock-bound coasts of Maine to the sun-kissed shores of California, from the pearly lakes of the northland to the waving palms that fringe the Gulf, without a woman wanting to know what was the primary vote in North Dakota, or whether the tariff on wool is higher than it was in 1894.

The first thing we know, this country's politics is going to have something to do with the practical affairs of its citizens, and then think of the terrible unemployment among the professional politicians!

NEVER TOO LATE

The idea being fostered by Senator France of Maryland, of holding dedication ceremonies for the Panama Canal, will find a widespread response the country over.

There was to have been a great international festival when the canal was opened, but the world war intervened. The foolhardy spirit which plunged the world into battle swept aside all dignity and recognition of true progress.

Men were in no mood in those dark days to point proudly to one of the greatest achievements of the human race. How sad a commentary upon our sense of values!

Now the neglect will be repaired, if those interested have their way. Senator France has made one excellent suggestion. It is that music have a large part in the celebration.

With such radio equipment as is common in all the larger centers, the musical programs could be heard around the world. How fitting, to link up the Panama Canal, which brought the commerce of the continents so much nearer, with the conquering of the other waves.

Which is truly greater, to have it possible to transport goods and humans more quickly from one part of the world to another, or to have enabled music, the wonder-gift of life and thought, the secret of our mastery of the world, to fly magicwise around our planet in a trice?

Two noble things man has accomplished—let us by all means spread them big upon our record, that perchance the ugly blot of war may not loom so hideous.

Dean Goodnight believes that there are as many rooms as there were last year, and more are being listed every day.

About 300 double rooms are listed, ranging in price from $3 per week for each occupant, to $4 and $4.50 some 110 single rooms are listed, with prices ranging from $3 to $5. There are several rooms with alcoves, and a few rooms in which three men can room.

Master Bakers Worry Over Wages And Coal Situation

Milwaukee, Wis. Sept. 12—Wages of bakers and the bearing of the coal crisis upon baking during the coming winter are important topics under discussion at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Master Bakers association in session here today, according to Joseph Poehlman, Sr. president.

Tomorrow members of the association will take special cars for Chicago to attend the national convention of master bakers' associations, where problems relatives to the welfare of the industry will be discussed.

Health Examinations For Beauty Experts Sscheduled

Madison, Wis.—The state board of health has scheduled examinations for managers and operators of beauty parlors, to be held at Milwaukee Oct. 9, 10 and 11. It will receive applications of candidates until Sept. 25. Managers pay a fee of $25 and operators $2. There are about 235 beauty parlor shops in the state, and about 500 persons are engaged in the industry.

Products Show Will Advertise Badger Quality

Madison, Wis.—To advertise Wisconsin as the producer of quality products, both agricultural and industrial is to be the prime object of the Wisconsin Products Exposition to be held at Milwaukee, December 14 to 20. County lines are to be broken in the displays in order that products of the state as a whole may be shown to better advantage.

"The general purpose of the exposition is to impress upon the people of this state and of the nation as well, the fact that 'made or grown in Wisconsin' stands for quality, regardless of the county in which the article is produced," L. G. Foster, deputy commissioner of markets said today in a statement.

"It is a marketing project and not a competitive project, with the underlying purpose of consolidating the manifest joint interests of the Wisconsin manufacturer and the Wisconsin farmer. Wisconsin products, from cheese to steam shovels and from soil to soap, are of such high standard that 'made or grown' in Wisconsin' should carry as great a guarantee of excellence as 'made in Germany and 'made in Japan.'

The Wiscinsin State Potato Growers' association and the Wisconsin Grain Growers association have each reserved six booths for the display of certified potatoes and certified grain grown in the state. Apple, fruit and vegetable growers are expected to follow their lead.

Suggest Green Instead Of Red For Auto Tail Lights

Madison, Wis.—Red as color for rear automobile lights is likely to give way to green or yellow as a result of investigations now being conducted by the American Engineers Standards committee, the Wisconsin industrial commission announced today. Request is being made of the commission that it study the advisability of standardizing traffic signals.

The use of red tail lights on automobiles is said by the commission to result in a large number of accidents each year due to confusion of signals. Automobilest often mistake tail lights for danger signals and danger signals for tail lights with disastrous results at times, the industrial commission says.

It suggests that green, indicating caution, should be used as the color for rear automobile lights, while red be retained as the signal indicating danger.

The Chiropractor must intimately know the body. He must know what nerves feed every organ and just where these nerves branch out from the spine, so that he can place his finger right on the point of pressure that is causing trouble in a certain part of the body.

Knowledge of Spine and Nerves

When the Chiropractor, by scientific adjustment removes the pressure from the nerves and helps Nature to restore Health, the operation seems a simple one. Yet the knowledge is one that is gained only after a great deal of investigation, for Chiropractic is just as much a science and a profession that has to be learned as any other Health method.

Because of this expert knowledge of why he adjusts, where and how to do it, the Chiropractor can, by examining the spine, tell what is the trouble without a patient telling him anything. The spine is the key. Spinal pressure on a certain nerve leads to weakness and disease in a certain organ. That's why the Chiropractor adjusts a certain part of the spine to relieve headaches and another part of the spine for stomach or abdominal troubles, etc. In no drugs or knife are used. If you are not as well as you should be, have your spine adjusted and the cause of your troubles removed, so Nature can make you strong and healthy again. Information, or a spinal analysis given without obligation. Investigate.

"MORAN OF THE LADY LETTY"

A dance on board the second finest yacht on the Pacific Coast—scenes at a fashionable afternoon tea in San Francisco; a grand ball at a magnificent hotel—these are some of the scenes in "Moran of the Lady Letty," prouced by George Melford for Paramount and to be shown at the Palace theatre today, which, while essentially a sea story, is nevertheless possessed by features quite foreign to the sea.

It is at the afternoon tea that the spectator first sees Rudolph Valentino, leading man, and learns that he is bored to extinction by the shallowness of society life. Later he is shanghaied while enroute to a dance abroad the yacht and meets for the first time Moran, an elemental girl who dresses like a man and commands a ship. This role is played by Dorothy Dalton, who is featured in the picture.

Fierce Battle

Fighting on the fore top of schooner with the vessel rolling and pitching and the mast swaying, is no pleasant job, according to Rudolph Valentino, playing the leading male role and Walter Long, the villianous captain of the hell-ship in "Moran of the Lady Letty."

The fight scenes were filmed abroad the ship in San Francisco Bay. The two men were at least sixty feet above the deck. The fight started on deck and continued on up the rigging until they reached the fore top. From there they fought on out to the end of a spar. After a final struggle, the villain drops into the ocean. For this latter shot, a camera was lashed to another spar, and thus a close-up view of the knock-out punch and the fall was obtained.

GRUWELL'S IDEAL THEATRE

Friay night is here again and with it comes "Bargain Night" at The Ideal. The program originally intended for last Friday but unavailable on account of being booked too far ahead is to be given tonight. It will open with Rounds One and Two of the film adaption of H. C. Witwer's wonderful stories of the prize ring in Collier's Weekly. This was the special feature which created such a furore in Chicago the past summer and it is certainly one of the most interesting series of pictures ever screened. Following this comes a Metro Special production—Gareth Hughes in "I can Explain" a comical story of doubting husbands and sorrowful wives, of expeditions to South America and everything. This picture is garnished with one thrill after another and to complete as unusually pleasant evening there will be a Snappy Comedy, "Pets by Proxy." Ten reels of real entertainment. Showings at 7 and 9 o'clock.

Saturday matinee and night there will be a Big Double Show as usual, the program headed by Wm. S. Hart in "Travelin' On" in his latest Paramount effect and according to critics one of his very best. This will be shown with the Third Chapter of "The Blue Fox" a chapterplay which is proving one of the most popular ever shown in Wisconsin Rapids, and a two part Enooky comedy called "The Monkey Cop". Two shows at 7 and 9 will be given.

Lesson 6

THEORY OF WIRELESS WAVES

Now that you have built a set and listened in on messages or broadcasting programs, it is well to give you an idea as to how the waves and signals you hear, travel.

Books can be written on this one subject, so I will touch it briefly. By a few illustrations I will clear this matter up for you.

First, raido waves travel with the speed of light or 300 million meters per second which is equivalent to 186,000 miles. The transmitting station sets up electromagnetic waves which disturb the ether, which pervades all space and travels at the speed mentioned.

In a way, these waves are similar to waves or ripples on a body of water formed by throwing something into it. As an illustration, go to a pool of water and throw a stone in the middle of it, at once ripples are set up from where the object struck the water and radiate in ever widening circles. The electromagnetic waves do likewise and the farther they go the weaker they become just as the ripples do.

To give another illustration we will say that on the pool is a piece of wood. Now when the ripples come to that wood they disturb it but do not carry it along. Radio waves do the same. They induce current into an aerial and pass on to the next but some of their energy is used in this procedure.

Also if a large rock or other obstruction is in the pool the ripples will strike it and be deflected and on the far side of the rock there won't be any ripples but a distance beyond the rock the ripples will meet again. This is also true of radio waves that are deflected by mountains and other natural obstructions and makes receiving better in some localities than in others.

The waves set in motion by the sending apparatus have the property of starting or setting up oscillations in any conductor which they strike, but they are weak and require clicac instrument to etect them. Such instruments are known as detectors and consist of various minerals.

The waves generated by the sending station consist of high frequency oscillations, which are alternating currents, as they flow back and forth. The detector has a characteristic of allowing these currents to flow through it in one direction only and thus acts as a check valve and the impluses are changed to a pulsating direct current. These will flow through the telephones and cause the diaphragm to vibrate and the ear detects the sound whether it is code signals or speech.

The tuner is a very important part of your equipment as it is with this that the incoming wave is picked up. All signals are sent out on a predetermined wave length, and by varying the number of turns of wire on your tuning coils you adjust the receiver to the same wave length as the incoming wave, otherwise you would not receive the signals. If it were otherwise you would hear everyone at once and not be able to understand any of them.

In many ways the principal of radio telegraphy and telephony are alike but in some ways they differ widely. In the first place the waves sent out by telegraph transmitter are interrupted while being produced, either by a spark coil or through the discharge of a condenser, although they may appear continuous. So if a telephone transmitter were attached to an ordinary wireless instrument, the sounds of vibrations of the voice would be cut up into sections and would be meaningless. To overcome this we must have a continuous wave called C. W. This is accomplished by the vacuum tube transmitter.

POINTERS

A crystal detector set is never as efficient as a vacuum tube set.

A crystal set cannot be satisfactorily amplified.

Grid leaks are not used on crystal sets.

Next week will cover detectors, variable condenser and what to expect from your receiver.

High Collars

Many of the new fall models show a marked preference for severely tailored lines. One type has a high collar—quite up under the ears and retains the rudiments of a cape. The other has side drapes and tight sleeves.

House Recommits Tariff Measure; May Mean Delay

Washington, D. C. Sept. 14—Failure of congress to enact the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill into law at this session loomed as a possibility last night, following unexpected action by the house in sending the measure back to conference with instructions to eliminate the rye embargo provision and to put potash on the free list.

The farmers of the bill were given a surprising and decisive rebuke. One hundred and two Republicans joined with seventy-two Democrats and one Socialist in support of a motion by Representative Garner (Tex), ranking Democratic member of the ways and means committee, to recommit the bill. The motion was carried by a vote of 177 to 10.

Badger Cities Cutting Wood In Preparation For Winter

Milwaukee, Wis.—Many cities throughout Wisconsin are preparing for a coal shortage for the coming winter by cutting all available hardwood trees and cord wood, according to reports received here.

It is not believed that families will have to contend with a shortage of fuel unless the shortage of transportation facilities prevents the movement of coal, according to local dealers.

Indications are that the greatest shortage will be found in the supply of hard coal, as the supply is said to be exhausted or what little dealers have on hand they are said to be holding because of the high prices.

Eau Claire Normal School Reports Record Enrollment

Eau Claire—One hundred more students entered the Eau Claire State Normal school on the opening day on any other previous registration day in the history of the school. With an intitial enrollment of 360, a total of 600 students is predicted by the end of the year.

Manitowoc—Safety first teaching in public schools was urged by Miss Marie Garhard, new county nurse in her first public bulletin. Miss Gerhard advocates that children be given training in the schools on accident prevention and first aid.

Sandwich Treats Instead of Sweats

Children have a natural craving for sweets. In the interests of good health, satisfy their sweet tooth with tasty sandwiches instead of rich pastry and confections. Then you'll be building health instead of indigestion.

Chocolate Sandwiches
For the filling make an icing, using one and a half tablespoons of cocoa, two tablespoons hot water and sufficient confectioners sugar to thicken. Into this stir one-half cup chopped walnut meats.

Raisin and Peanut Butter
Use equal quantities of raisins and peanut butter. Chop raisins medium fine and blend them with the peanut butter and a small amount of plain butter. Spread between slices of whole wheat or white bread! cut very thin.

Fig Sandwiches, Rolled
Bread for rolled sandwiches should be very fresh. A few hours before cutting wrap the loaf in a napkin wrung out of hot water and outside of that a heavy dry towel. Cut in thinnest possible slices, using a sharp knife, and butter lightly. Make a filling of the soft portion of a dozen figs, rubbed to a paste. Spread and roll as for a jelly-roll cake. Hold in place by toothpick at each end which should be removed just before serving; if desired, tie with baby ribbon.

An overland trip on a through train de luxe is a journey that is never forgotten. On such a trip the dining car is the chief attraction. For there you sit with all the time in the world and settle down to the delights of your repast, while America unrolls her scenic beauty before your eyes.

The meals must be good on trains de luxe [that is the rule] and the coffee must be surpassingly good [that is the law].

And the coffee on such famous trains de luxe as the Panama Limited of the Illinois Central R. R. is Thomas J. Webb Coffee, of course.

You may have this same good coffee in your home—just get it from your grocer. You pay no more for it than for ordinary coffee. In fact, it is an economical coffee, for you get more cups to the pound. Try it!

DAIRY CONGRESS TO BE LARGEST

PLAN RECORD EXPOSITION AT NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW AT ST. PAUL THIS FALL; SPECIAL RAIL RATES

Hamline, Minn.—The National Dairy Exposition, to be held at the state fair grounds here, October 7-14, promises to be the largest and most popular in sixteen years of constructive work, according to Colonel W. E. Skinner, general manager.

Everything that pertains to dairy agriculture and its allied industries will be shown and demonstrated.

"Returning to the northwest for the second time, the National Dairy Association, which is staging the Exposition, desires to prove that diversified farming with high-producing dairy stock pays in money. A correlated object is the education of the consumer in the greater use of dairy products."

Special Low Rates

Pre-war railroad rates have been granted by the Western Passenger Association for all who attend. There will be a rate of one and one-third fares from the northern peninsular of Michigan, all Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, eastern South Dakota, eastern Montana and northern Iowa. From the rest of the United States there will be a rate of one and one-half fare, on the certificate plan.

In the exposition will be found exhibits of the best-producing dairy cattle of the five leading dairy breeds—the Holsteins, Jerseys, Guernseys, Ayrshires and Brown Swiss. The pure-bred cattle exhibits usually number one thousand, including the prize winners of the fairs and expositions of the year.

Show Research Results

The United States Department of Agriculture, through its Dairy Division, will exhibit all of its research work with regard to cattle and cost of production, and all of its experiments in the manufacture of milk products.

Students from the state agricultural colleges will compete in two national judging contests, one of dairy cattle and one of dairy products. About twenty states are annually represented. Extensive preparations are being made by leaders in women's work throughout the country for the "Healthland" show, an exhibit typifying the efforts of children by the leading welfare organizations of the United States.

VETS PREPARING FOR G. A. R. CAMP

FIFTY-SIXTH ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT WILL BE HELD AT DES MOINES THIS YEAR; HOLD REGIMENTAL REUNIONS

Des Moines, Ia.—The fifty-sixth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held here during the week beginning September 24.

Aging veterans of '61, their ranks greatly diminished by death, will gather with their comrades for the fifty-sixth time since ending their services in the Union armies.

Tales of famous battles, changes at Gettysburg, Sherman's march to the sea, privations and sufferings which ended with the surrender of Lee at Appamatox, will be recalled and told with an enthusiasm which has increased at each annual encampment.

Less than 93,000 of the "boys in blue" are alive today. Their numbers, running into hundreds of thousands shortly after the close of the Civil War, have been thinned with increasing rapidity by the advance of time. Within a few years the Army of the Potomac will be but a memory.

Hold Special Services

The encampment will open Sunday, September 24, with special services in the Des Moines churches where veterans will be speakers. Monday will be registration day and the time for the exchange of greetings.

Regimental and brigade reunions will be held Tuesday followed by receptions by auxiliary associations at the governor's parlors, in the state house.

The parade will be held Wednesday morning. A school children's program will be given on the grounds of the capitol that afternoon and the great camp fire will be held that evening in the collosseum.

Business of the encampment will occupy the attention of the veterans Thursday morning and afternoon and the election and installation of officers will be held Friday, the last day of the encampment.

State Law Protects Trees Against Wanton Destruction

Madison, Wis.—Shade trees along highways in several sections of the state have been cut down in violation of the state law, according to complaints that have come to the Wisconsin highway commission. Prosecution of the vandals injuring trees along state roads will be undertaken when brought to the attention of the highway department.

In some places trees have been cut down to give a clearer view to sign boards, while in others they have been destroyed to make way for telephone and telegraph poles. In each case the law is violated and the guilty persons subject to prosecution.

One section of the Wisconsin statutes provides that if a tree on the right of way is destroyed without the consent of the owner the guilty person is liable for treble damages while another statute makes a person guilty of destroying trees along highways subject to criminal prosecution as well.

Man Who Saw Custer's Last Stand Victim Of Starvation

Quincy, Ill.—On the day that Charles B. White, Indian fighter who witnessed the Custer massacre, died of starvation, the postman delivered a pension check from Washington, which, received earlier, would have saved his life.

White, who was 74, was found on the floor of his small back bedroom in a rooming house, unconscious from lack of food. He was taken to the Soldiers Home hospital by friends. A bill has been pending for some time before congress to give him a life pension. He refused to beg and could get no work.

After many delays the bill was passed and his first pension check mailed but it arrived several hours after White died.

The veteran was a member of Company E. Eighth Illinois Infantry, which was sent with other detachments through the hills to surprise the Indians. While on their way, Custer and the main body of soldiers were attacked and massacred. White and his comrades, a short distance away, witnessed the fight, unable to help.

Pinched Nerves

A sound mind and a sound body CANNOT exist unless the creation and production and transportation of vital forces is perfect and free from obstruction; as the engine is dependent upon water, coal and fire for its velocity, so the human body in health is dependent upon the production and transportation to every part of the full amount of vital energy, and interference with or deficiency in this dis-ease, commonly so-called.

The Chiropractor locates the interference, gives a Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustment, which relieves the nerve pressure, and the vital energy flows uninterruptedly to the organs involved. Result, the so-called Dis-ease disappears. Consultation and Spinal Analysis Free.

The Better Place to Trade

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS — Tom's Cleverness Was Expensive — BY ALLMAN

"He had a boat; he wants to say, 'I was a humble man; I took fish on hooks and in nets.'"

Barney wrote out his next question before saying it aloud: "Maneto o nikweniman no nossau gaie ningaian?"

"He wants to say," replied the voice, "I have never heard of father."

"Ninga?"

"He says, 'Yes.' He says, 'Mother I knew; mother came to shore bearing child; not born child,' he says; 'she was very sick. I took her in canoe, that is.'"

"What did he do for my mother?"

"He says, 'Took her to my house in the lonely place where was woman, my wife.' He says, 'There boy was born; you stayed there.'"

"What happned to my mother?"

"She was very sick; but she did not die; she went away."

"When?"

"When she went away, he means?"

"Yes."

"Then when did she come?"

"In the moon of the breaking snowshoes."

"What year?"

The medium made no direct answer; but after a pause the voice continued: "He says that all summer she fed the baby at her breast till she went sick again. He wants to tell you that she said, when she went away, she surely would return. He says, 'There I lived until water froze again.' He says, 'But no one came back; so I went away.'"

"Were did you go?" Barney cried quickly, as the medium's picture changed; gone from her, as surprisingly as they had come, were the slight motions of her hands, the jerkings and mannerisms which had characterized the presence of the "control." Mrs. Davol slowly sat upright and gazed dully about like an ordinary, over-fed woman making an apparent effort of memory to recognize her callers.

"Well, dearie," she said at last to Ethel. "Did you get satisfied? Was there good results?"

Ethel realized, with a gasp, that the seance was over.

CHAPTER XIV

"You think we'd better have Kincheloe arrested?" Ethel asked Barney when she returned home.

"I'd like to know what he's doing now," Barney said.

"Oh, Bennet's told me. He's having his sort of a fast time. That part of Chicago's called, by people who go there, 'Little Paris.'"

Barney made no comment, and they both sat down.

"Do you want to tell me what you thought about it?"

"You mean whether I believed those were the circumstances of my birth? Yes, I did, Miss Carew."

"Who could the Indan be? Noah Jo?"

"I suppose so."

He stood up and, turning his back to Ethel, he strode away, as he had a habit of doing when beset by emotion.

"You see—you see—Miss Carew, it hadn't occurred to me then that I—"

"What, Barney?"

"That I might have been born on quickly.

"How do you mean?" he asked the Rock, Miss Carew."

"Barey!" Ethel rebuked him by his own name gently. "Barney!"

"You can't want me to call you—"

"I can't?"

"Ethel!" he said, hardly whispering it; but she heard. "Ethel!" he clenched his hands behind him, and she stepped farther back. "That's the way I was born, I believe!"

"Let's believe it, Barney!"

"Miss Carew!"

"I don't mind believing it, Barney! It doesn't change you! Except to make you finer!"

"Finer?"

"Because you've had to do it all yourself! Don't you see how I—" she faltered a little and substituted—"how every one must admire you only more for that! Besides, my people are to blame."

"They must be. We both of us know together that my people—my grandfather and my uncle, at least—tried to harm you. Not to hurt you, perhaps; but they saw that Quinlan was killed before he could find you. Why? You hadn't done anything to any of my family; you hadn't even heard of them before you met me. It was what you were—because you were that baby born on the Rock; and they knew it."

"I said you might be—any one!" she recalled, gazing up at him with eyes suddenly wet. "You are not—not just an outcast born in an Indian hut. I don't think I'd care if you were!"

She had not intended to say what she had; but having said it, she meant it. She would not care if he were an outcast born in a Chippewa shack; but the certainty that he was not was never clearer to her than now.

"I know now why grandfather feared the Rock all these years, Barney; it was for fear you'd come back! That's why the house was built and left to wait; for you!"

"But this which we learned tonight, Barney, helps a lot; your mother came—with you," she added gently, "to the shore there beyond St. Florentin. In April—the moon of the breaking snowshoes," she repeated the poetry of the Indian phrase, "Noah Jo—we may as well call him that—took her in his boat across the channel to Resurrection Rock where he and his wife took care of her. You were born there; in September your mother was sick. She did not die—there, at least. But she went away and did not come back, though Noah Jo waited there until winter—"

"November, he meant," Barney supplied. "He spoke of the freezing of water; that is the Chippewa name for November—the moon of the freezing again."

"I see. And then, as he was a nomad he went away and took you; he died—now we're coming to affairs you learned from Azen Mabo—and gave you to Azen without being able to tell anything about you but that the ring went with you. We really got quite a lot tonight, didn't we, Barney?"

"I've got," Barney said, his hands still clenched behind him, "more than I ever had in all my life before."

He moved a little nearer her. "I mean from you—Miss—Ethel Carew. You're a strange girl; the finest and noblest in all the world," he added quickly. "You turned against your own people, and you trusted me!"

"You, Barney? Why not? How could I help it?"

"Don't!" he warned swiftly. "I've got to thinking about you in a way I never should."

"How do you think about me, Barney?"

"Think?" he repeated. "I don't think about you. I can't. I love—love—love you! There, I've said it!" He snatched his hands apart behind him and struck them together before him in his dismay.

"You love me, Barney?" she said.

"Love you! Love you!"

"I love you, Barney. I've loved you from our first morning together, I think."

"No; no; no!" he tried to deny her; but she only smiled up at him and said:

"Yes; you've known that, Barney. That's been what's troubled you: not that you loved me, but that it was so plain that I loved you."

"ALL THE MEN IN THE WORLD MUST HAVE LOVED YOU, ETHEL"

"So plain!" he denied, almost furiously, for her. "It wasn't. It's not true now!"

"Oh, isn't it? Do you suppose I'm ashamed."

He dropped to his knees before her and caught her hands and held them.

He bent his head and drew her hands to his lips; and his kiss, though not at all like the first love kiss she had dreamed to be hers some day, brought her amazing estasy. She loved this boy who so loved her and yet, half in fear of himself, half in fear of her, held from her even in their rapture. She wanted him nearer now; she wanted his arms about her, his strength subduing hers, overpowering and holding her; and yet she delighted too in his courtly awe of her when he had kissed her hands and released her, catching his breath, after no more than that.

"I've never—" he said, "I've never had anything like that before."

"Nor I! Nor I!" Ethel cried; she caught his hands now and held him before her.

"You'd not? All the men in the world must have loved you, Ethel, the moment they caught sight of you."

"And the women, you! Yet you didn't care until you saw me! Not even abroad, Barney, in England and France where girls—"

He gazed steadily into her eyes, knowing what she would not, and yet wished to ask. Had he been, even without love, another girl's?

"There are some advantages in being brought up in an Indian shack, Ethel," he said. "They've only one room often, you know; with sometimes two families or three; and lots of human living is there. What you learn turns you straight either one way or the other; it turned me to look for—for you, and to wait till I'd found you."

She bent down and kissed his fingers; so he arose and drew her up with him. For a few moments he held her against him with her bosom trembling on his throbbing breast; then, slipping his arms lower, he lifted her and, laughing at her quiver under his strength, he strode with her a few steps and catching her higher, he brought his lips to her.

CHAPTER XV

Bennet, having gone directly home from Scott street, had found his grandfather still up and reading.

"Well?" Lucas demanded, thrusting his fingers through his thick hair, as he looked up when Bennet entered. "Where have you been this fine evening?"

Bennet proceeded to relate all incidents in order except for the mention of the spirit who showed the letters "J. Q." Being aware that any reference to Quinlan was unpleasant to his grandfather, Bennet made the most of his satirical description of the other "acts" before he told about the spook who had displayed a capital J. and Q.

This evoked from his grandfather a different quality of attention, but there was no distinct alteration in Lucas's attitude until Bennet related how the medium had said that the spirit had raised a flaming torch and associated the torch with the word Galilee.

Illinois Candidates For Congress Take "Wet" Stand

Chicago,—About one third of the candidates in Illinois for Congress have anounced their attitude toward prohibition. Of these, fourteen declared themselves wet, seven dry, and five said that prohibition was not an issue in their districts. None of the candidates have announced their position thus far.

Of the candidates declaring themselves wet, three were Republican, four Democrats, four Socialists, and three represented the Farmer-Labor party. Of the drys, two were Republicans and two Democrats said there wasno liquor issue in their districts.

Of the thirty-seven candidates in the ten Chicago districts and the four Chicago candidates for representative at large, twelve have announced their positions, eleven declaring themselves wet. The twelfth, James M. Cahill, Farmer-Laborite in the Eighth district declared for enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment but suggested that the amendment might be modified to some extent "to remove the feeling that it is an infringement upon personal liberty."

American Made Motor Cars Finding Favor In Sweden

Stockolm—Sweden today counts 40,000 automobiles, according to recent statistics, double the number in use two years ago. Stockholm alone has 5,000 cars. Swedish farmers, formerly hostile to the invasion, have become reconciled and are buying cars. Much of the gasoline and an overwhelming majority of the cars come from the United States.

Highway Building Costs Lowest Since War Period

Madison, Wis. Sept. 14—Road building costs were markedly less during the present year than at any times ince the war period, the highway commission announced today. Paving costs decreased 20 per cent from last year and grading costs 31 per cent the commisison announcement shows.

From figures compiled by the department the cost of concrete construction is seen to have dropped from 34,346 per mile to $25,383 for this year, or 8,963 less than the 1921 cost. Paving costs are 58 cents less per cubic yard and grading cost 36 cents less.

This decrease in the cost of highway construction has enabled the highway department to construct a larger mileage of road from a smaller expenditure. It expects to build 400 miles of concrete highway before the end of the season.

Forty Nations Will Send Delegates To Dry Congress

Toronto, Canada—Forty countries are expected to be represented at the International student conference of the International Prohibition Association to be held here Nov. 24 to 29.

Among the delegates more than 500 from colleges in the United States and Canada have announced they will attend. The conference will be held in cooperation with the convention of the World League Against Alcoholism.

Among the speakers who will address the conference are Dr. R. Hercod of Switzerland, director of the International Temperance Bureau, the Right Honorable Leif Jones of England, president of the United Kingdom Alliance, Jnananjan Nyogi of India, secretary of the Bengal Social Service League, C. C. Weeks of London, president of the World Student Federation Against Alcoholist and Dr. Ira Landrith, president of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association.

Milk Consumption In U. S. Close To Production Mark

Chicago—An increase of one teaspoonful of milk per person in the United States would increase consumption to a point above production, according to M. D. Dunn, president of the National Dairy Council.

Dairy production increased eleven percent in 1921, Mr. Munn said, but the increase of consumption more than offsets this increase because of educational campaigns. Another campaign will be started to clear the over supply reported by the government on August 1.

Boards of health ,medical associations, school boards, mother's associations and welfare organizations throughoutout the country are advocating an increase in consumption of milk in each family. Especially is milk being used in schools to aid under weight children.

"The prosperity of the dairy farmer has been one of the bright spots of the present agricultural situation," said Mr. Munn, "and I believe there is no cause for concern in the future."

The annual meeting of the Southwestern Geological Society will be opened at Dallas today and continued over tomorrow.

PROGRESSIVES TO GUIDE REPUBLICAN PARTY PLATFORM

GOVERNOR BLAINE AND LAFOLLETTE FACTION EXPECT TO HAVE THINGS THEIR OWN WAY AT MADISON TUESDAY

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis. Sept. 15—The action of the Republican platform convention meeting here Tuesday, September 19 to formulate the principles on which Republican candidates nominated at the September 5 primary will enter the general election campaign will take the center of interest on that ay. Plat form conventions of the Socialist, Democratic and Prohibition parties are expected to be perfunctory.

The La Follette Progressive forces, in control of the convention under the leadership of Gov. J. J. Blaine say that day. Platform conventions of ing their planks adopted by the meeting. Likewise they plan to kill any counter moves made by the opposing faction of the Republican party.

Democrats May Not Meet

While the Republican party is determing the principles which it will include in the planks of the party platform, the Socialists and Prohibition party candidates will shape up their statement of principles. Democrats are not yet certain of a party convention. They count, however on the nomination of 12 candidates for the legislature a sufficient number to represent the party in a platform parley. Leadership of state officers will be lacking because of their faulure to poll votes enough to get on the ticket.

Leaders of the La Follete wing of the Republican party say that the platform announced by them previous to the primary contains most of the principles they will include in the platform to be formulated Tuesday.

This calls for reduction of state taxes by continued economy in state government and by abolition of tax dodging, removal of the secrecy clause to the income tax law, an excess profits tax and adjustment of income tax rates.

Would End Esch-Cummins Law

To promote agricultural and industrial prosperity the Progressives propose immediate repeal of the Esch-Cummins law, construction of the Great Lakes St. Lawrence waterway, reconstruction of the federal reserve and the federal farm loan systems so as to eliminate control by international financiers and legislation to end control by monopolists and speculators for grain, livestock, dairy products and other staple necessities.

The party is expected to declare its continued allegiance to a protective tariff but to oppose a tariff that will "impose exhorbitant monopoly prices upon every American household."

May Amend Dry Law

Amendment of the prohibition law to prevent search without warrant is expected to be proposed in a plank which will call for impartial enforcement of all laws.

Governor Blaine, who will lead the La Follette forces and as a result, the convention has been out of the city for several days planning on the course of action to be taken by his faction when the meeting is called. Before he left the governor expressed the opinion that the meeting would be quiet and take such action as the progressive wished.

FAREWELL PARTY

Miss Elsie Ross entertained a number of friends at a farewell party Thursday evening in honor of Miss Virginia Whittlesey who leaves soon for St. Louis, Mo., to attend school.

The evening was spent playing games and later dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The guests included the Misses Viola Carlson, Ernestine Johnson, Marcya Lynn and Catherine Cahill and H. Whittlesey and John Hill.

LOCAL TEAM WILL MEET MARSHFIELD ATHLETES SUNDAY

LOOK FOR TOUGH JOB SOLVING OFFERINGS OF PITCHER VALETA; FENWOOD AND INDEPENDENTS IN OPENER

The Wisconsin Rapids baseball team will clash with Marshfield in the feature engagement of a double header at the Marshfield fair grounds Sunday. Fenwood will play the Marshfield Independents in the opening contest which is scheduled for 1:30.

The local boys are anticipating some stiff opposition from the up county athletes, particularly if Valeta, Marshfield's star moundsman, is travelling well. Valeta let Stevens Point down with a 4 to 0 defeat last Sunday, and is said to be one of the hardest pitchers in central Wisconsin to hit when he is going well. Reeths will do the receiving for the enemy.

Use Same Lineup

The Reed-Fahrner aggregation will probably present about the same line up that has worked in recent games. Perling will start on the mound, it is expected, with Plahmer on hand for relief duty. It is likely that Dolan will not be in shape to work behind the bat, and in that case Marks, who did well in the Nekoosa game, will catch.

The preliminary game between Fenwood and the Marshfield Independents has aroused considerable interest in Marshfield. Fenwood has been playing snappy baseball all season, while the Independents have developed a strong aggregation within the last couple of months. Wensing and Johnson are slated to do the heavy work for the Independents, and Stemler and Crampeir for Fenwood.

The farmers of this community report a large crop of potatoes.

COACH SPAULDING HAS HIGH HOPES FOR GOPHER TEAM

FIGHTING SPIRIT THAT WORKED WONDERS AT KALAMAZOO NORMAL EXPECTED TO AID MINNESOTA

(By Associated Press)

Minneapolis, Minn.—Talk of "Big Bill" Spaulding for ten minutes about football prospects at the University of Minnesota, where he is entering his first season as head coach, and one feels confident the Gophers will have a fighting team, at least.

There are no sweeping promises or predictions in the pre-season utterances of Spaulding, but his first call for candidates contained one characteristic sentence: "We are counting on you to help make Minnesota the fighting team of the west this fall."

When it was announced last winter that William H. Spaulding had been chosen as successor to the veteran Dr. Harry L. Williams as the Gophers' football mentor, the sideline wiseacres said: "Well, they didn't know about that."

But when "Big Bill" eased into Minneapolis one day last spring, exhibiting a marked reticence but an eagerness to get the squad out for spring practice—something new at Minnesota—football experts allowed maybe the wiseacres didn't know.

Gaining Favor

For, although comparatively unknown to Minnesota football followers, Spaulding came and established himself in good favor, with opinion generally held in abeyance until the opening of the heavy fall schedule gives a real line on the team.

One long suit of "Big Bill's" is the fighting spirit. They said at Western State Normal in Kalamazoo, Mich., where his team scored 269 points against its opponents' 40 last year, that he had an intangible something about him that put light in every man on his team.

Plenty of time will be devoted to the fundamental points of the game, according to Spaulding's present plans. Then a limited number of plays, developed to perfection, and the spirit of never-say-die. That's about all Spaulding has to say now in the line of pre-season plans and hopes.

Starred at Wabash

Back in 1903, "Big Bill" showed his "punch" as a member of the Wabash college team. He weighed around 180 pounds and could do the 100-yard dash in ten seconds. In 1904 and 1905 he perforated all the lines in Indiana and Illinois, and they put him on mythical All-Western teams.

Spaulding went to Western State Normal in 1906, and developed the institution's major sport program until 1913, when the team went through the football season without a defeat. Other season were almost as successful.

Assisting Spaulding in development of the 1922 Gopher team will be T. Nelson Metcalf, former Oberlin coach, who will have charge of the freshman squad; Arnie Oss, the greatest athlete Minnesota has ever produced; George Hauser, a former Gopher star lineman; Leonard Frank, football and track star, and one other assistant not yet chosen.

HUNTING AS A SPORT

BY CAPTAIN FRANK WINCH

Time was when hunting was more of a grim business than a pastime. The pioneer blazing a trail so that civilization might treke its sure-footed way across the wilderness expanse is no more. Frontier paths have given way to concreted ribbons of highway, the log cabins to roaring municipalities, the woodsman and his keen-edged axe stand statue-wise in a dusty niche of history. The abundance of wild animal life that ranged the mountains and valleys of yesterday, like the argonaut, are but retrospective memory. Here and there to some small, minor extent is to be found game, little enough at that; and on the other hand, statistics prove that each year the number of hunters is increased. This added to the improvements in firearms, the cheapened methods of transportation, argue none too well for the future of hunting, unless the game of hunting becomes more and more a matter of genuine sport.

Hunting is a sport. Man inherently is a sportsman. The day of killing just for the lust of the thing is passed. Man goes to the wilderness today, or as much as he can find of it, mainly for recreational purposes, to take a peep into the vastness of nature's storehouse beyond the ranges, to explore the untrodden retreats, and he follows the luring trail, all acquiver in rapturous glee as the red gods beckon at the other end.

There's the call of the wild in every heart through which true-blooded Americanism flows, inbred there from the generations of the hardy pioneers who have gone before. There's the appeal to freedom, away from worry and care the hunter shoulders his Winchester and saunters through the realms of romance. Real recreation awaits the sportsman-hunter, along with a coat of tan, hardened muscles, clear vision and wobbly nerves restored to normalcy. The nimrod edges away from civilization to realize the pure joy of living, that the red blood may run free in his veins, that he may achieve an outlook on life with the right perspective.

Finest of all Sports

Range the entire gamut of sports and there will be found nothing greater than the lure of hunting. None that calls for more mental and bodily fitness, more alertness of brain and eye, more suppleness of limb, more concentration, more observation. The hunter sportsman is a gentleman through and through, he respects the property rights of others, he does no wanton damage, he is considerate, he is kind, he is fair, he's not a superman at all, he's just a sportsman from the rank and file of our great army of humans. Wherein he fails in any of these points, there and exactly there is measured his distance away from true sportsmanship. He will conserve game by not making random or out of range shots, he is careful of his matches in the woods. A tree can make a million matches, a careless match can destroy a million feet of trees and he knows it. The hunter is considerate of his dog, he does not kill the entire covey of birds, nor does he destroy the mother sex of big game or any game. He knows his game laws and observes them.

The sportsman-hunter bespeaks a finer man in calibre, a better, cleaner, more wholesome sort of a fellow. A man while with you in the woods emphasizes the truer ideals of companionship, and later, back to the commoner places of routine life, a man, that you cherish, admire and respect as a friend.

What a Real Sportsman Is

Get you to the open, my friend, and listen to the message of the pines. Their silent, graceful forms will bring a soulful peace. There you will meet your Maker face to face. There you will find purity, exhilaration, and uplift of spirit. There with the quiet glowing jimmy pipe, a roaring camp fire, beneath the star lit heavens you'll hear a lullaby from the whispering soothing pines, nature's choir in tuneful melody of praise to the Master Creator. Your sense of beauty and color will be satisfied, this is the Sportsman's Paradise and God made America for the truest, cleanest, most honorable type of all, the American sportsman.

After all, this hunting game is but a bit of the bigger game of life. The real sportsman is not merely playing for the prize—he is playing for the fun of it; the health of the thing. And, when the trail is over and the sky, golden and red with the setting sun, he smiles. For life has been to him the great game, he has lived by the side of the trail, not merely trampled over it. The real gentleman and soldier at heart, brave to the soul of him, the man's sized man, he that takes to hunting as a sport.
